Police Risk Management Police risk management is an integral part of the City's overall risk management exposure and should be subject to the risk assessment and evaluation review process as conducted by representatives from all City departments.
City-written General Orders (GO's) or guidelines reflect dates indicating reviews and updates. Key policies should be reviewed annually.
Each City subscribes to a legal liability service for updated policy and procedure notification and advice.
City departments have adopted a "reasonable force" approach to policing. Training records reflect this philosophy.
Code 3 driving standards are in place and documented, which reflect current legal liability and professional standards that minimize risk to others sharing roads with emergency vehicles.
City departments comply with all POST-mandated training requirements including perishable skills and training to General Orders is documented.
Digital audio-visual technology in patrol vehicles, and digital audio recorders on person, are used to provide defense against alleged police misconduct claims.
